On the Public Square Next Sunday Evening—Christian Patriotism to be the Theme of Song and Sermon.

Sunday evening, July Fourth, the people of Bedford and vicinity will be treated to an innovation in the way of a religious service, when the several churches of the town, instead of holding their usual services in their respective churches, will unite in one grand union service on the square in front of the Lutheran Church. This will be the first of a series of Open Air Meetings to be continued throughout the month of July.

These Outdoor Union Summer Sunday Evening Services have proved highly successful in other communities in which they have been tried, and it is believed that they will prove no less attractive and successful in Bedford. The service will last only one hour, from 7 to 8 o'clock. A large orchestra and union chorus choir will furnish the music. The red song books used in the Tabernacle meetings will be used, and all who have books are requested to bring them to the service.

The Rev. J. A. Epler of the Reformed Church will be the speaker for the first of these services, and the first Sunday, being the Fourth of July, the service will be in the nature of a patriotic celebration in music, song and sermon in which the entire community is asked to participate. A large number of seats will be provided, and everything possible will be done to contribute to the interest and success of these services.

Should the weather not permit of an outdoor service any evening, the service for that evening will be held in the Lutheran Church. The thought of the churches in planning for these services has been to promote the spirit of Christian unity, to provide for the comfort of the worshippers, and to bring together the largest possible number of people for a twilight hour of worship and praise. In this purpose we believe the churches should have the enthusiastic support of the whole community.

Prof. Shaffer Elected at Braddock

Prof. O. N. Shaffer has been elected to the chair of science in the Braddock, Pa., schools, a town of about 20,000 in the circle of Pittsburgh business. He supervises the work in Physics, Chemistry and Biology, three classes a day. The city finished a new High School building costing $213,000, and Mr. Shaffer's department will occupy three laboratories and a lecture room. Mr. Shaffer expects to take up post graduate work in the University of Pittsburgh. It affords him an excellent opportunity and The Gazette congratulates him.

Methodist Day at Lakemont

Busy preparations are now in progress to make Methodist Day at Lakemont Park, Altoona, such an occasion as has made this the record day for the summer at this popular park. The date is Thursday, July 29. Ample provisions will be made by the railroad companies to accommodate the large crowds. The meals on the grounds will be handled by the ladies of Grace Church, Altoona. Efficient committees are at work touching every phase of the work designed to make this a great day, and nothing will be left undone that will add to the facilities making this great Methodist reunion one of profit, fellowship and abiding inspiration.

CANCER CONSIDERED ONLY

A Special Meeting of the Bedford County Medical Society in the Interest of the Public.

In accord with the request of the Commission to investigate cancer, appointed by the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania and in common with all other county medical societies in this State, the June meeting of the Bedford County Medical Society, held in Bedford last Monday, was entirely devoted to a consideration of cancer and the examination of clinical cases of this malady and supposed cases of cancer.

Cancer is now regarded as curable in the initial stage and preventable in the pre-cancerous stage. The following doctors attended the meeting and took part in the discussion of Dr. Nason's paper "The Cancer Problem": W. A. Nason, Roaring Spring; H. A. Shimer, Alum Bank; M. B. Breneman, Saxton; W. P. S. Henry, Everett; J. F. Price, Six Mile Run; E. L. Smith, Schellsburg; H. I. Shoenthal, New Paris; T. W. Cook, Osterburg; J. W. Lindsey, Imbler; A. Enfield, W. F. Enfield, W. Ayers, C. W. Gensimore and H. R. Brightbill of Bedford.

Cancer is supposed to be caused by the development of embryonic cells, which were misplaced in the body and as a result of some disturbance of nutrition, or on account of an irritation of some kind to the part affected, take on an unhealthy growth, enlarging to form a tumor, and then die, producing a malignant condition. Cancer never stands still and never stops; it is a rapid mushroom growth of unhealthy cells, which continue to pile up, but never attain their complete form and cease developing as normal cells do, when making a repair of bodily injury in a healthy system. This unrestricted growth may be the result of improper metabolism or caused by a change or deficiency of the fluids of the system.

A report of this meeting is not given out for the purpose of alarming people, but for the purpose of advising those having suspicions, tumors and discharges, not to overlook them, but to seek advice at once before further enlargement, with the hope of finding permanent relief and to change the present established belief that all cancers are incurable.

The attention of the public is also called to the absolutely free, scientific bacteriological examinations of nearly all fluids and tissues of the body, offered by the State Board of Health of this Commonwealth, under the direction of Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, Commissioner of Health of Pennsylvania and Dr. B. F. Royer, Chief Medical Inspector, who report from this department positive conclusions, to local physicians, who send the specimens, of sputum, blood, or diseased tissues, etc., which makes the diagnosis of all cases positive, and not uncertain, as in the past.

We physicians realize that care and vigilance in the observance of the rules of health, and the use of the above means of diagnosis, is the only solution for this malignant disease, which is rapidly increasing, and for which no specific germ has been found and no virus used successfully as an antitoxin to overcome it. We all know no cure has yet been found for all cases.

The real work of eradicating the malady lies just as much in the hands of the people generally as it does in the hands of doctors. We hope you will wake up and take advantage of the assistance offered.

Pay attention to the jagged tooth, ill-fitting body harness which rubs and irritates, and all blood diseases, and have an investigation made to determine the internal make-up of all tumors.

I am anxious to see the discussion of this subject continued by any physician or citizens of the county.

Walter F. Enfield, Secretary Bedford Co. Med. Soc.

About 120 persons attended the silver tea given last Friday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Smith, South Richard Street. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers, etc., yellow being the predominating color. The exhibit from the Eden Museum, New York, was quite an attraction.

Several days ago two automobilists, driving Packard cars, created a little stir in Everett by using the main street of the town as a race course. Chief Burgess Frank Richards telephoned to Bedford to head off the speeders, who were coming our way, and Chief of Police C. O. Wilson, who is always on his job and has proved himself a terror to speeders, as well as to other violators, nabbed the "gentlemen" when they appeared here. They settled by each paying a fine of $25 and costs.

Paul Smith's Hotel is one of the noted stopping places in the Adirondack Mountains. J. Roy Cessna has gone to that delightful spot for a 10 days' sojourn with the outing party of the Equitable Life Insurance Company.

Roy won this outing trip for writing a certain amount of insurance for the first five months of this year. Adirondack is an Indian word, signifying "he eats bark." Roy thinks he will eat chicken and waffles when he gets to Paul Smith's Hotel, but he may eat Indian bark pudding and not know "he eats bark."

New Curtain at Dreamland

A new gold fibre curtain will be installed in the Dreamland Theatre today by the proprietor, George C. Biser. The curtain will be the only one of its kind in use in this section of the country, and is the same as the one used in the Strand Theatre, New York, the greatest moving picture play house in the world. A new standard player-piano will also make its appearance with the curtain, thus giving to the people of Bedford and vicinity a strictly up-to-date moving picture house. Mr. Biser is to be congratulated for the manner in which he is endeavoring to please and entertain the many patrons of the Dreamland.

Thaw is having his "sweats" in the New York courts again. His paid doctors say he is sane and the paid doctors of the State say he is crazy on some things. His money keeps him in seclusion and his money is responsible for so much ado in the courts. A poor "skate" would have been hung or freed long ago.

FAMOUS OLD LIBERTY BELL

"Joe" Wambaugh's Road Construction

We are not aware that anyone of the State's employes on country roads has received more praise nor deserves more praise than "Joe" Wambaugh, down Cumberland Valley.

Mr. Wambaugh has spent much time studying the needs of the road over which the State has placed him and has put his plans into execution so effectively that the roads are high and dry and not washed by the recent rains, breakers out and the water conducted under the road bed and not over it according to the old method. We are not conversant with the condition of the road from Arnold school house to the Maryland line but from Bedford to the school house, the road never was better. Mr. Wambaugh has arched the road in the centre and kept the drains along the side, open and has constructed outlets for the water to get into the fields and away from the roadbed as soon as possible. He has put tile or culverts where he could and had time and when he didn't have the time and material to build conduits he made wide, shallow low places to conduct water until opportunity allowed him to finish the work.

This thorough plan has prevented the roads from washing in the least in the recent hard rains which saved much time and expense in rebuilding. Many other roadways which were worked this spring were torn out and washed away simply because the dirt was thrown into the roadbed loose and no attention paid to creating a high centre, no allowances made for high waters nor heavy rains by forming drains to get the water from the roads and no conduits built.

The supervisors of Bedford Township deserve some mention also. They have made great progress this year in repairing their roads. They have put in many culverts, hilled the main roads in the centre and made many improvements which will keep the roads in a permanent condition for years. The road drag is the most important implement to good dirt roads.

So Bedford Township boasts of the best roads, all in all, anywhere to be found in the county, and we believe it to be so. Don't forget the road drag. It is the inexpensive tool, can be made at home, to work dirt roads.

A Paying Bank

The First National Bank of Claysburg on July first paid its shareholders its usual semi-annual dividend of 5% (10% annually).

This bank was founded by our townsman, P. N. Risser, its present First Vice President and Cashier, on July 24, 1912, and since its organization has placed to surplus amount and paid its shareholders $14,575 or 59% on its capital of $25,000, all of which except a 10% bonus paid for stock, was earned in less than three years.

Mr. Risser retires as Cashier of this bank in September to take charge of the new Bedford County Trust Company here, as its Treasurer, which opens for business at about that time.

The success of the Claysburg Bank has made a record that has few equals. We congratulate Mr. Risser in his success at Claysburg and commend him to the people in his new field as Treasurer of the Bedford County Trust Company, which expects to open its doors about September 1st next.

Mrs. Susan C. Miller

Mrs. Susan C., widow of the late David H. Miller, died at her home at Roaring Spring Monday morning, June 28, of a complication of diseases. She was born at Baker's Summit on May 9, 1833, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Baker. Seven children survive.

The funeral service was held on Wednesday at her late residence. Interment was made in the Holsinger Cemetery.

J. Irvin Detwiler

John Irvin Detwiler, a prosperous young farmer, aged 30 years, took his own life by hanging at his home about two miles north of Woodbury early Thursday morning of last week. Mr. Detwiler some time ago purchased a farm between Woodbury and Ore Hill. But a small indebtedness remained on the place and there was no reason why he should have worried over finances, although he remarked the day previous, when he returned from paying his taxes, that they were more than he expected.

Mr. Detwiler arose about 6 o'clock and made the kitchen fire. When he did not respond to Mrs. Detwiler's call, she made a search and found him hanging to a rafter in a hen house a little distance away. She called for help, and after a careful examination, it was found that he had been dead some time.

Surviving are his wife and two children. He was a well known member of the Church of the Brethren and was highly esteemed.

Lawrence Kinser

Lawrence Kinser, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kinser of Everett died in the Nason Hospital, Roaring Spring, Monday evening of last week. Following an operation for appendicitis, the child developed an abscess of the hip which caused his death. The body was taken to Everett and funeral services were held at his home Thursday morning, June 24. Interment was made in the Everett Cemetery.

Mrs. David D. Kaufman

Mrs. David D. Kaufman of Altoona died in the Methodist Hospital, Philadelphia, on Sunday, June 6. She was born at Shirleysburg, and was aged about 45 years. Her husband, mother and one brother survive. Interment was made at Mt. Union on Friday, June 11. Mrs. Kaufman was a former resident of Saxton, where Mr. Kaufman was in charge of the M. E. congregation. She was highly esteemed by all in that section.

Margaret Gochnour

Margaret, the nine-year-old daughter of William H. and Sophia Gochnour, died at their home in Three Springs Valley on Sunday, June 27, of leakage and enlargement of the heart. She is survived by her parents, one sister Mary and three brothers, Joseph, Bruce and Irvin. Interment was made in the Imbler Cemetery, Rev. Baugman having charge of the services.

Margaret was a lovable little girl. The family have the sympathy of all their friends in their bereavement.

Mrs. Eve Kegg

Mrs. Eve Kegg, widow of Jacob Kegg, died suddenly Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Eli Corle near Charlesville, where she had gone to visit her daughter. Her maiden name was Eve McElowney, daughter of John and Maria McElowney, and was born near Rainsburg 76 years ago. There she grew up, and lived in that peaceful neighborhood for more than 50 years. About 13 years ago she moved to Bedford where she resided until her death.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Reuben Diehl, and her two adopted children, Mrs. Nicholas Burkett of Claysburg and C. V. Shoemaker, who lives at Woodstock, Va. For several years Mrs. Kegg was a member of the M. E. Church, South, near Rainsburg. In recent years she was a member of Trans Run M. E. Church, Wolfsburg Circuit.

The funeral services at 104 South Richard Street, her late home, were conducted by Rev. Hilbish and Rev. Ellis B. Davidson. Interment was made Wednesday in the old Brick Church Cemetery, in Friend's Cove, by the side of the body of her husband, where she wanted to rest.

Good Treatment For Oily Scalps

Men and women whose hair and scalp are excessively oily suffer more in the warmer months than at any other time. The summer's dust and dirt mingle with dandruff, clog the scalp pores, stifle the hair roots and make proper cleansing almost impossible.

Parisian Sage is an ideal treatment for this trouble. Wash the hair not oftener than once a week, but use Parisian Sage twice daily, pouring a little into the parted hair and rubbing briskly right into the scalp with the finger tips. It drives out dandruff, dissolves the excess oil and stimulates the scalp into healthy normal action. Sold by F. W. Jordan, Jr., and leading druggists everywhere.—Adv. 2 July 21.

RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the tortures of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system. To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general health as to purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's great blood-maker, while its medicinal nourishment strengthens the organs to expel the impurities and rebuild your strength. Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

PORCH FROCKS AND CRETONNES

Two Midsummer Fads of Fashion That Bid Fair to Be Even More Popular

Leather Belts Marshall In A Military Air

New York, June 30, 1915.

Porch frocks and cretonnes are the present proteges of Fashion. The first comes as a natural sequence to the veranda habit, but the latter descends without reason or forewarning—an overnight invasion. The very mode of their entry bespeaks their duration. It is not difficult to predict that the fad of the porch frock is destined to last to the third or the fourth season; in fact, as long as porches themselves endure; but the craze of cretonne, volatile as it is, is a whirlwind fancy.

Both are American ideas. With the handicap of Paris temporarily removed, the American designer has awakened to new activities and, as ever centers his attention on the practical, salable side of dress. It is a season of simplicity and conservatism. The one-piece frock, which has long flourished under the "Made in America" label finds a new channel. Women today think quickly and act quickly. There is no hesitation, they like the idea of the porch frock; of having a costume that fits in with the swinging hammocks, grass, rugs, and wicker furniture on the broad verandas of their homes.

And flowers, and this is used for the skirt, Quaker collar, cuffs, and brim of a sunbonnet, while the mull is employed in the waist and gathered back of the hat.

The cretonne is especially summery and youthful. It is shown everywhere in vacation clothes for misses and children. The misses' dresses are jumper effects and the children's, slips and regular garden smocks. Even little boys' rompers are shown in the chintz, and certainly the flowers are prettier than the dull linens and chambrays of past seasons.

In the millinery field the material plays even a more important role than in dresses. Here, there are no sports and playtime labels. The cretonne is made in trim sailor shapes that are par excellence in fashion. These are worn both with suits and one-piece dresses. The figures in the material give an elaborate effect. But little extra ornamentation is needed. A pleated rosette at the side, or a plain colored binding, this and no more is the trimming.

A Porch Frock of Mull and a Child's Playtime Dress of Cretonne

Life on this side of the Atlantic grows more methodical. As distinct a style as motor togs, and sports clothes, porch frocks are primarily built for comfort and coolness. The necks are low, either Dutch fashion or V-shaped, the sleeves short and the material sheer. Rose mulls, figured crepes, white lawn, and striped and coin-dotted voiles predominate. An attractive pink mull is pictured on this page with the new tucked skirt and yoke blouse. The convertible collar and turn-back cuff of black-and-white striped mull give a character to the dress, which is noteworthy in all of these new designs. Generally speaking, the styles are plain, the emaculation of the material being the principle charm of the frock. However, variety is not lacking in designs. There are V-necks with the collars that can be worn high or turn low as fancy dictates; the round neck with broad Quaker and Puritan collars of white Swiss, and the new buttoned-in-the-back styles, which have the square Dutch neck finished with a bias band of the same or contrasting material, or a bit of embroidery.

Fancy belts are often used with these dresses. They are made of white kid strapped with black patent leather, trimmed with a large buckle and sometimes in the military models, brass buttons are added.

The surprising thing about these frocks is that they are, one and all, inexpensive. Mulls, voiles, and crepes are offered for five dollars and less. This fact alone does much to account for their popularity. At least, it has been a factor in their favor this season, when every one and his brother are preaching economy. These light frocks, washable and cool, serve their purpose and serve it well. This we must concede to the American designer.

Cretonnes are far more startling. It's a long jump from sofa-pillows to smocks; smocks bridge over the space to hats, and thus opened the way to neckwear, skirts and children's dresses. This furniture covering, with its quaint wall-paper patterns, broad stripes and checks, seem to have fairly bewitched the town. Last year the fad was chintz interior decoration and this season it is chintz dresses. Indeed, at the beach and mountain resorts you are conspicuous for the lack of it. Hats, coats, collars, bags and children's dresses are fashioned of this fabric. The designs of the material, always in gay colors, range from wild flowers and butterflies to conventional roses and stiff bouquets. One of the large stores is featuring a combination of this material and mull. The cretonne is printed with lattice work, flower-pots,

McCall Lattice Cretonne Combined with Mull in a Dress for the Garden or the Shore

In view of all these things, it is not surprising that the season has been called one of "Portrait Fashions." Certainly, nothing could be more picturesque than the cretonnes. Yet, like the porch frocks, they are simplicity personified. It would seem that stability steadies the whole mode. Nothing is bizarre or extreme. These are left to Paris when she shall once again take up the question of clothes in earnest. At present, we are satisfied with the altogether wholesome and womanly styles that the American designer gives us and tremble to think that the small waists of the Catherine de Medicis period or the tight sheath skirts may again be thrust upon us.

An Easy Way to End Catarrh Forever

Simple Home Treatment Destroys Germs of This Dangerous Disease.

The air is always full of catarrh germs thrown off by one person and absorbed by another and when your system fails to throw off such germs they find permanent lodgment in the nose, throat and head and multiply rapidly. You must kill these germs before you can cure catarrh.

The germs of catarrh can be best destroyed by inhaling the pure medicated air of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me). This splendid and powerful combination of oil of Eucalyptus with other healing agents has a wonderful germicidal action. You breathe its air into your nose, throat and lungs by means of a small hard rubber inhaler which F. W. Jordan, Jr., and other leading druggists here in Bedford and vicinity supply with every treatment. This medicated air is certain death to the germs of Catarrh and drives them completely out of your system and when the germs are destroyed the catarrh with all its disagreeable symptoms will stop. As Hyomei is pleasant to breathe and is always sold by druggists everywhere with a positive guarantee of successful results or money back, surely no Catarrhal sufferer should go long before trying this simple home remedy.—Adv. 25 June 21.

FINAL TONE OF LIBERTY BELL?

What Is Believed to Be Its Last Ringing Is Said to Have Recently Taken Place at Philadelphia.

What may prove to be the last ringing of the historic Liberty bell took place in Independence hall at Philadelphia recently.

It was decided to transmit the tones of the bell across the country to San Francisco over the recently completed transcontinental telephone line, partly fulfilling in a literal sense the prophetic words cast on the bell, "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof." The bell was struck three times with mallets at intervals of five seconds. By an arrangement of three very sensitive transmitters, which were suspended beneath it on rubber bands, so as to exclude all foreign vibration, the tones were caught and clearly heard over the telephone wires on the Pacific coast. At the same time a phonographic record was made of the notes so as to preserve them for posterity.

This is the first time that the great bell has been sounded since it was cracked in 1835 while tolling the death of John Marshall, the first chief justice of the United States Supreme court. The reason that it may never again be rung is that a new crack, more serious than the old one, has developed in it.

It has been found that the bell is afflicted with the "disease of metal." This is partly responsible for the appearance of the latest fissure and has made it necessary to support its weight on padded props in order to relieve the stress which has gradually been pulling it apart.

The new crack is now plainly visible, while only a short time ago it was microscopic. It begins at the upper part of the original fracture, extending from the letter "P" in the "Philadelphia," diagonally a quarter of the way around the circumference, to the letter "Y" in "Liberty," near the top. It is believed that the new crack might not have occurred had the bell been allowed to remain at rest after it was first broken. It has, however, been shipped on different occasions to New Orleans, Chicago, Atlanta, Charleston, Boston and St. Louis. That it is actually suffering from a malady known as the "disease of metal," is the description of its ailment in the technical phraseology of the metallurgist, and is not a popular figure of speech. The reason for this distemper is to be found in the history of the bell's casting.

It was originally made by Thomas Lester at London, in 1752, and shipped to Philadelphia. When it was hung to try the sound it was cracked by the clapper. At first it was intended to return it to England, but subsequently two workmen, Pass and Stow, neither of whom was experienced in the art, undertook the recasting in Philadelphia. Obviously the bronze was too brittle, and in order to toughen it, they added approximately ten per cent of copper to the original metal. When the bell was later rehung it was found that too much copper had been used, and, to the chagrin of everyone, the tone was destroyed. The same men again undertook the work, and this time are supposed to have added tin to restore the tone. The third bell was accepted, but too much tin had been used, and the tones were so highly resonant that it was seldom rung.—Popular Mechanics.

It is very hard to convince a writer who is paid by the word that brevity is the soul of wit.

First Dose Ends Indigestion, Heartburn, or Gas on Stomach

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from indigestion, dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking Tonoline Tabs. People with weak stomachs should take Tonoline Tablets occasionally, and there will be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, sour risings, gas on stomach, or belching of undigested food, headaches, dizziness, or sick stomach; and besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking Tonoline Tablets.

Go to your druggist and get a $1 box of Tonoline Tablets and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. Tonoline Tabs freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

Tonoline Tablets cost $1.00 for a 50 days' treatment. At druggists or mailed by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass.—Adv. 18 June 4t

THE MEDICINE HABIT

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene
by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D.

Many a man who would resent the efforts of a blacksmith to repair his piano, will accept the advice of his next door neighbor, regarding some favorite remedy for an ailment, the nature of which is by no means certain. He will consume innumerable bottles of "medicine" which are accompanied by guarantees that no reputable physician would think of making.

The human body is so much more delicate in its construction than any mechanical device ever invented, that to run the risk of upsetting the functions of the various organs by the use of preparations of which one has no accurate knowledge, is not only absurd but in many instances extremely dangerous.

There is another drawback to self medication. The diagnosis of disease is a matter which requires skill and training of the highest kind. The symptoms of various disturbances in the human economy may manifest themselves by causing distress in some part of the body entirely separated from the seat of the difficulty. As an example indigestion is often the cause of headache. Such symptoms can only be properly related to the cause by one who is skilled in diagnosis. Food itself, under certain conditions, may produce disturbances as profound as those caused by potent drugs.

The tendency of modern medicine is toward prevention and the present day physician makes far less use of drugs than did his predecessors. Despite this fact it has been estimated that the people of the United States spend some $500,000,000 a year for medicine, most of which is not prescribed by physicians. We consume more drugs than any other people in the world.

The individual who has any ailment which seems to necessitate the continued use of drugs should, for his own welfare and safety, consult an able physician.

The Evil of Stale Breakfast Foods

Harrisburg, June 30—Announcement made a few days ago from the State Food Bureau concerning cereal food preparations having called forth many inquiries, Dairy and Food Commissioner Foust thinks it is timely to make a frank statement of the evils discovered by the Bureau in connection with this particular trade and to warn dealers of the measures that will be taken to stop the existing abuses.

There is no criticism, the Commissioner remarks, of the food quality of the average breakfast cereal when it is sold in a fresh condition to the consumer, but it is well known to all dealers that these preparations are very liable to insect attack unless the greatest care be taken to keep the stock fresh and to store in places where the danger of such attack is least. Past examinations by the Bureau have revealed numerous cases in which the contents of packages were simply alive with vermin and cob-webbed with the tissues woven by the insect larvae they contained.

The Commissioner recognizes the conditions confronting the retailer in keeping his stock of breakfast foods fresh; and wholesalers who make a careful comparison of the 100 to 150 brands of such foods on sale in the State will find that in reality there are only 12 to 15 types of breakfast foods that differ at all distinctly one from the other, and yet nearly every week sees community after community canvassed by agents presenting samples of some new breakfast food, taking orders for the same and turning them over to the local grocers supplying these several families, with the demand that he add this new name to his stock, despite the fact that his shelves are already crowded with the one hundred other brands. And immediately thereafter the same merchants are induced to stock largely with this new named variety by reason of quantity discounts. The demand for the goods earlier in stock temporarily, or permanently, stops, but the goods remain on the shelves and are held there for months, or even for years, with the vain hope that the breakfast food fashions may turn and the old stock becomes salable. Under this condition of affairs "every bug has his day."

The difficulties of the retailer under these conditions are recognized, but the rights of the consumer for protection against this evil cannot be overlooked. The Commissioner wants every retailer handling cereal goods to understand that the retail stocks in every part of the State are to be thoroughly sampled and sent to State College for a scientific examination and that whenever contamination by bugs, slugs and the like is detected prosecutions will be instituted in every case and vigorously pressed. This frank note of warning is given so that the retailer may have a fair opportunity to clean up his stock and consign to the dump every package of cereal that is in condition to bring him into trouble because of its lack of freshness or its location near weevily goods, since even fresh goods may quickly become weevily if stored in the neighborhood of old packages containing these insects. Despite the difficulties of these conditions the retailers have a remedy in their own hands, and that is to buy in small quantities, turn the stock often and so have little left long enough upon their shelves to be in serious danger of insect attack. If the retailers, aided by judicious co-operation of manufacturers and jobbers to remedy existing conditions, do not get rid of this evil it is possible that the people may feel it necessary to adopt a remedy proposed in other states against the sale of stale stocks of perishable goods such as these cereal preparations, namely, that of requiring that the package shall bear a stamp indicating the date of manufacture of the goods.

The Commissioner earnestly hopes that the retailers of the State will examine their own stocks and protect their own customers before the Food Agents reach their stores, and by so doing avoid trouble of a more serious character for themselves.

Fifty Worst Weeds

Farmers' bulletin No. 660, entitled "Weeds and How to Control Them," by H. R. Cox of the Department of Agriculture, contains within its 29 pages a mass of information on the subject treated, no less than 27 text figures illuminating its presentation. A descriptive table of the fifty worst weeds is given as an appendix.

The main principles of weed control are preventing weeds from going to seed, preventing the introduction of weed seeds on the farm and preventing perennial weeds from making top growth. It is demonstrated that by following these rules a farmer may make his farm practically weed free.

Copies of this bulletin can be obtained by writing to Representative Warren Worth Bailey, Johnstown. Mr. Bailey also has on hand a limited number of circulars on "Dandelions in Lawns," "Crab Grass" and "Chickweed" for distribution, which he will be glad to forward to persons interested on application.

Ex-Governor John M. Slaton of Georgia left the State on Monday for a visit to the Pacific Coast. His stay as indefinite and will likely be until the excitement in Georgia dies down.

The game warden of West Virginia threatens to sue the Dry Forces of that State for emptying the whisky into the Kanawha River and killing the fish. That's the greatest argument we have against the stuff. It kills the fish when diluted with water and yet human beings drink it undiluted.

The Child Labor Law provides that minors between 14 and 16 years shall attend school eight hours a week if a school is open in the district of employment. The State will hold a school of instruction for teachers to do this work in Altoona, Altoona High School, opening July 19, 1915. For further particulars, address Millard B. King, Dir. Industrial Ed., Harrisburg, Pa.

The Republicans are making all kinds of overtures to the Progressives to fall back into line—the old reactionary line of old. We remember of one of our county journals saying at the outset that the Progressives will repent in "sack cloth and ashes" but now it is on its knees begging for a return to the fold and only because the editor expects to be the party nominee for one of the county offices. Their votes look good to him now but at one day it was, The Progressives be damned. It is interesting to read the reactionary vagaries and delusions with which the national Republican leaders are trying to honey the Progressives back into the arms of the G. O. P. Nothing is promised. They only want them back to vote. Let them give Roosevelt the nomination for President, or some other good Progressive. That will get them back. They won't go back for the sake of it. That accomplishes nothing. The Progressive party, as put by one of its staunchest leaders, is "To give, to serve, to broaden life and gladden living" while the Republican party is, as the same leader says, "The accumulation of wealth." "Property is its god." "To own, to control, to have, and to hold."

Poor Hobson! His lecture was fine until he spent about ten minutes of the close, which seemed to be his climax, in personal remarks. That killed the effect of it all. Nobody doubts that the liquor interests were against him and defeated him in his fight for United States Senator and of course we know he feels a little hurt over his defeat, but why torture an audience in Pennsylvania with the sores of Alabama? We have enough of those of our own. To say that the administration was against him is too far fetched for belief. The President issued a statement that he was neutral in primary elections for Democrats. The question with the people then is whether they will accept President Wilson's public statement or Hobson's private guess used to alleviate some pain in his defeat. We are glad that Wilson is to be renominated and write his own platform and that Bryan is to be his sponsor on the stump. We knew that. This administration is a prohibition Democratic administration. Its example to the people is having its influence upon them. The evidence comes from the revenue received from the sales which have been reduced $12,000,000 in the last year. If it reduces at the same rate for the next two years the sales will have fallen off $35,000,000 to $40, 000,000, and the deficit must be met by the income tax or some other method of taxation. Hobson would be a factor on the platform for temperance if he would cut out the personality at the close. Nobody cares to have him rehearse his political downfall. What is the difference whether the amendment to the constitution is called the Hobson amendment or not? It isn't material as to the name, but he seems to think that adds so much dignity to the whole scheme that he wants it called Hobson. Poor Hobson! He is a poor loser.

The people will realize how necessary it is to conserve the flow of water for hydrants and stop all waste of our water supply when they learn that the water has ceased to flow over the spillways, and that the level of water in one reservoir has sunk several feet below the spillway level in the past couple of days. Our people must remember that the State authorities have notified the Council, and we printed the notice in The Gazette, that no more water can be pumped from the river to replenish our mains and that to meet this requirement we will need to go to the river with our buckets and get water where we can for household needs when our stored supply exhausts. We can well remember the inconvenience felt last summer, and to prevent the recurrence this summer we need only to be saving and frugal. We all want good water and we ought to be willing to exercise some care in its quantity and conservation.

THE LACK OF SKILLED LABOR

We noticed in an exchange a few days ago, that it seemed almost impossible to get enough skilled workmen. The writer found that there is a good deal of help that can be had. But only a fraction of the applicants are men who can do a high grade of mechanical adjustment.

In rush times almost any kind of an employee can get work. His inferior product slips along. The inspector may see its defects. But when customers are clamoring for delivery of orders, many faults slip through that ought not to pass.

In the dull times of the past few years, inferior workmen have found themselves left out of the shuffle. If there was work for only a part of the force, the skilled man was kept at the bench, while the less efficient man was informed that there was nothing doing. No complaint might be made of the quality of his work. But somehow there was never anything for him.

Just now the rush of war orders is providing work for many men whose product is of inferior quality. But when the war orders stop, and before the normal trade of peace times is re-established, there will be many an idle day for the second rate artisan. These conditions are true not merely of workmen in the lines making war material, but in all lines of mechanical employment.

The young mechanic should put some brains into his work. He should study the philosophy of mechanical processes and physical forces, and learn the one perfect way of performing every motion. If some of the time spent in discussing socialism and baseball were spent in getting information about the best methods of producing the desired mechanical results, there would be more meat for the family table and more clothes for the kids. Also in every trade there are practical books of technical science that give good ideas. If they can not be had in a man's own town, they can be borrowed at slight cost from circulating libraries.

HOW TUBERCULOSIS SPREADS

Encouraging figures about the fight against the "White plague" were given at the recent Anti-Tuberculosis association meeting at Seattle. The death rate from this disease has been reduced in the past 33 years from 326 per 100,000 to 146. But as 143,000 people still die yearly from tuberculosis in this country, it is still an ever present dread.

The one great difficulty is the persistence of the habit of spitting in the streets. It is not a pleasant subject. The newspapers would rather write about something cleaner than this toilsome crusade against a popular custom.

Formerly almost every one ridiculed the idea of a campaign against street expectoration. The citizens clung to the habit, as if it was one of the choicest of liberties for which the fathers fought, bled and died. If a city council was asked to pass an ordinance for more sanitary conditions some local agitator was sure to denounce such a tyrannical interference with ordinary habits. Most of the leading citizens did it, and people who denounced the practice were called fussy old aunts.

There is not much of it done in Bedford but occasionally we see wads and splatters on a nice and otherwise clean pavement, that aren't any beauty spots to behold. The gutters are for this purpose and it isn't any difficult matter to step aside to the curb when we want to spit. Of course as the admonition goes, "If you spit on the floor at home, just do the same on the streets, just make yourself at home." But if you respect your home enough to go to the door, kindly respect the people who are kind enough and who are possessed with civic pride enough to build beautiful pavements, to step to the curb and deposit your tobacco juice there. As Governor Pennypacker said, "We all must spit," but there are places provided for it and they shall be so used.

While it is difficult to break the older men of this habit, every school child should be taught that no one has a right to take a chance of spreading disease and carelessness by spitting out upon the walk.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Interesting Notes From Our Correspondent at National Capital.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—The arrest of Victoriano Huerta at El Paso may have the effect of preventing the launching of a new movement for the restoration of peace in Mexico. The government is withholding the evidence upon which it proposes to prosecute Huerta for violation of the neutrality laws. Those who know Huerta best are certain that he does not aim to be President of Mexico, but is ambitious to serve at the head of an army that will establish a new government.

According to information thus far gathered, there are at least four separate and distinct groups apart from the Villa and Carranza supporters in the United States who are active politically in the Mexican situation. Whenever such activity shall reach the point of setting on foot a military expedition from the United States arrests are to follow. Officials at the Department of Justice expressed surprise that Huerta and Orozco had been released on bond, and let it be known that they had ordered their agents to maintain a strict watch while the two generals were at liberty, in order that they may not escape across the Mexican border.

President Wilson, it is understood, will not permit his hand to be forced in Mexico by the actions of Huerta. If General Huerta should succeed in complicating the Mexican situation the effect, so far as the administration is concerned, would simply be to muddy the troubled waters there and fortify the President's determination to stop the whole thing whenever he regards the time as most appropriate.

Intimations of a favorable reply from Germany to the last note of the United States concerning submarine warfare and the sinking of the Lusitania, were contained in an official dispatch from Ambassador Gerard received at the State Department. The dispatch was transmitted to President Wilson at Cornish, N. H. The information forwarded by the Ambassador was intended to depict the atmosphere in Berlin official quarters, and was not an attempt to outline the contents of the forthcoming German note. This information is not regarded by well informed persons as meaning that the German government has decided to grant fully the demands of the United States, but only that the attitude of the imperial government is friendly and conciliatory and will endeavor to submit proposals for an adjustment satisfactory to the United States.

The position of the United States in the Frye case is rested wholly upon the treaty of 1828, which Germany at first admitted rendered her liable, in the last American note on that subject, in which it is made clear that the United States government will have nothing to do with prize court proceedings in the case, but will insist upon the payment of an indemnity to be agreed upon by the two governments.

Advices received in Washington are to the effect that Southern business men and bankers are much wrought up over the suspension in the cotton export trade caused by Great Britain's blockade of neutral commerce. Protests are expected to be lodged with the administration in their behalf. Another important development in the European war situation was the personal call of representatives of 1,000 importers of this country upon Secretary of State Lansing, with a petition for action to enable importers to bring their dyestuffs and other United States owned goods out of Germany. Coincidental, however, it was announced that the United States is not considering the placing of an embargo at present on shipments to any belligerent country, notwithstanding published reports to that effect.

Because of the reports that United States mails destined for Norway, Sweden, Denmark and the Netherlands in transit through belligerent countries have been opened and censored, Postmaster General Burleson has directed that until further orders all mails for those countries be sent on vessels direct and not touching at any port of belligerents.

Offers of large salaries to expert ordnance officers of the army by private manufacturers of war munitions have created a serious problem in the War Department. Four resignations were accepted before the gravity of the situation was realized, but two others recently tendered are being held up pending a decision by the Attorney General as to whether an army officer has an "inalienable right" to resign his commission in time of peace.

Former Secretary of State Bryan was the recipient of a fine gold watch from the employees of the State Department as a testimonial of the esteem of the men who worked under his direction for more than two years. It is said that Mr. Bryan has reached a decision "not to deliver any speeches on controversial matters that might embarrass his former associates and friends in the administration." How he is to avoid making speeches "on controversial matters" in his campaign of statement making in the spread of peace propaganda is unexplained.

The investigation by a court of inquiry at Annapolis into the alleged use of purloined examination questions, which has now lasted three weeks, is apparently a long way from conclusion.

Hazing at the Naval Academy which was supposed to have been stamped out ten years ago as the result of a congressional investigation and the dismissal of a dozen or more midshipmen, has been intercepted into the inquiry, and, if pursued, is likely to lead to an indefinite protraction of the proceedings.

The 4,000 employees of the navy yard here were taken aback by the announcement that a reduction of wages had been ordered by the Navy Department authorities on July 1st. Secretary Daniels in commenting on the reduction said he had no discretion in the matter and had taken the action with personal regret but was compelled to do so because of the limited appropriations made by Congress. Many of the workmen, particularly those belonging to unions, made vigorous protests. After a mass meeting of workers involved in the reduction scheme it was decided to send a delegation to President Wilson's summer home at Cornish, N. H., to lodge a protest.

In another government bureau, that of the federal trade commission, a number of employees will lose their positions, because of the small appropriations available for the use of the commission in the prosecution of its work.

The rule of practice under which the trade commission will perform its legally imposed duty of regulating the business of the country have been adopted. The rules were framed with a view to keeping the proceedings in as simple a form as possible, and they follow in many respects the practice established by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Like the extravagant plot of a dime novel author is the story of Thomas G. Forney, who said good-by to his bride of six months here and followed her father to Pittsburgh to murder him and gain possession of his fortune. Forney came to Washington last year and opened a law office. He married the daughter of T. Franklin Schneider, a wealthy Washington man, who has a string of candy stores in a score or more of cities. The young man was well and favorably known in both professional and social circles and his extraordinary crime astounded those who knew him.

The annual Fourth of July display of fireworks will be held next Monday evening on the grounds south of the White House with the Washington monument as a background.

Washington society, following the appointment of Robert Lansing as Secretary of State, has expressed keen interest in the part his wife will play in social activity here. It is generally believed Mrs. Lansing will prove one of the ablest social leaders Washington has seen in years. She is the daughter of John V. Foster, Secretary of State under President Harrison, and thus was given an early training in Washington's social activities. Mrs. Lansing is one of the most striking looking women in administration circles. Her charm of manner and rare tact will doubtless gain great popularity for her. Much of Mr. Lansing's success is attributed to the aid of his wife. She has read extensively, and has always followed her husband's work on international law with much interest.

Petty Business Dishonesty

A friend speaking the other day of his visit to a certain city, remarked incidentally that he spent an evening on a trip to a noted amusement park. He was led to take the trip, which was one of some distance, by hearing that a certain famous band was playing there. He asked an agent of the park company at the city terminal, if the band played a concert that evening. The agent said yes. Arriving at the park, he found the band never played evenings. The agent had simply believed it good policy to lie to save one face.

It is significant that the traveler, on looking up the advertisements of the park, found that they merely advertised day time concerts. This shows incidentally how much more truthful advertising is than the word of individual employees. If an employee fibs, it is easy to explain it on the ground that he did not understand. A false advertisement can not thus be explained away.

It is a satisfaction to observe that the Associated Advertising Clubs, in their convention at Chicago, have again given great prominence to the idea of the necessity of truthful advertising. If there is a yellow streak of misrepresentation running through day by day business, it is much less present in advertising.

There is an old saw from the playground, "Cheatee, cheatee, never beatee." Every business firm should realize what a miserable policy it is for employees to falsify. That man who was disappointed on his hand, concert probably has told a dozen people how he was fooled. The incident was a slight one, yet people who heard it would reach the conclusion that the resort was a fake that did not live up to its agreements.

It is not enough for corporations, and business men to condemn dishonest statements on the part of their employees when they learn of them. They should also warn them in advance of the irritation and hostility that such methods cause in the public mind.

This Man "Saw" Big Trout and Muskrat in a Fight

Bellefonte, June 28.—Bellefonte may not have any man-eating sharks to show its visitors during old home week, but it has fighting trout.

Lew McQuiston went up Spring Creek about dusk while whipping the stream he saw a lively commotion on the other side. At first it was hard to distinguish, but he finally made out a muskrat and a big trout in a fight.

They slashed around until the waters were churned. Then the big rat managed to get out on the bank and draw the trout with it. But the fish seemed to be as good a fighter on land as in water and flopped around, hanging on to the rat's nose until it finally flopped back into the water. Then there was another lashing and foaming of waters, until finally the commotion grew less, and at last died down.

INDEPENDENCE

The anniversary of our national independence is at hand again, bringing with it, to thoughtful persons, the query, Am I really independent?

By this suggestion we do not mean to question the average citizen's political, mental or moral freedom. We refer solely to financial independence or lack of it.

No man or woman depending solely upon earnings is truly independent, because when earnings fail the earner is at once dependent upon somebody or something aside from his own efforts.

The real reason for saving and investing is found in the fact that a man does not earn a uniform income from the beginning to the end of his life, whereas his necessities remain practically uniform, or, if anything, increase with advancing years.

Secure your independence by starting a savings or checking account, at once, with

EVADING CAPTURE BY BRITISH

Quick Wit of American Patriot Saved Himself and Family When in Dire Peril.

There is an incident in the life of George Read worthy of mention in connection with these men who were martyrs to the Declaration. Fortunately Read suffered no real privation at the hands of the British a fact due however, solely to his presence of mind. When President McKinley, presiding officer of Delaware commonwealth, was made a prisoner, soon after the battle of Brandywine, it was necessary for George Read to take charge, he then being vice-president of that colony. He was in Philadelphia at the time of the president's capture and to return home entailed considerable danger.

The enemy occupied the west bank of the Delaware river and Mr. Read had to take the New Jersey shore, run the risk of crossing the river and elude, if possible, the vigilance of the enemy's ships, which were strung along the whole distance. The 13th of October, 1777, Mr. Read reached Salem, N. J., where he obtained a boat for the purpose of conveying himself and family across the river.

At the place where he undertook the crossing, the river was about five miles wide. Almost in view of the British ships he had about reached the Delaware coast when he was discovered, for his boat had grounded just too far from shore to make it practicable to land his family. Unable to go on or leave the boat they were forced to wait while a ship's boat came up to them. Mr. Read's wife had not been idle, however, and he devised a plan which he and his wife immediately put into practice. They destroyed all traces of identification of their baggage, a feat made possible by the time required for the other boat's approach.

When the boat came alongside he politely informed them of his plight, and added that he was a country gentleman returning home from a pleasure excursion he had made with his family. The presence of his mother, wife and children added weight to this story. The commander of the English boat was only a coxswain, his companions common sailors. There was nothing suspicious about the party.

So, taking pity upon a family thus stranded but a short distance from their destination, the English boat's crew obligingly assisted them to land helped to get the baggage on shore and, after receiving thanks for their kind assistance, returned to their ship. Mr. Read continued his journey, the end of which was the colony's governmental headquarters, where he assumed the role of chief executive until the release of the president was secured.

REAL HISTORY OF AMERICAN FLAG

Emblem, It Is Declared by Students, May Be Traced Back as Far as the Twelfth Century.

THE American flag is a growth rather than a creation. Its history can be traced back to the 12th century, or nearly 600 years prior to the first "Flag Day," June 14, 1777. During the first crusade in 1193 Pope Urban II assigned to all of the Christian nations as standards crosses varying in color and design, emblematic of the warfare in which they were engaged. To the Scotch troops was assigned the white saltire, known as the white cross of St. Andrew, on a blue field. The British used a yellow cross, but a century and a quarter later they adopted a red cross on a white field, known as the red cross of St. George.

When James VI of Scotland ascended the throne of England as James I, he combined the two flags, and issued a proclamation requiring all ships to carry the new flag at their main masts. At the same time the vessels of south Britain were to carry at their foremasts the red cross of St. George and the ships of north Britain to carry the white cross of St. Andrew.

The new flag was known as "Kings Colors," the "Union Colors," or the "Great Union," and later as the "Union Jack," and was the one under which the British made all their permanent settlements in America. It was the flag of Great Britain only by proclamation, however; not until 1707 did parliament pass an act definitely uniting the two countries and their flags. In the same year the government issued regulations requiring the navy to use what was known as the white ensign; the naval reserve, the blue ensign, and the merchant marine, the red ensign. Owing to the fact that the British merchant vessels were everywhere the colonists in America came to look upon this red ensign as the flag of Great Britain.

The people in the New England colonies were bitterly opposed to the cross in the flag. In 1635 some of the troops in Massachusetts declined to march under this flag and the military commissioners were forced to design other flags for their troops with the cross left out. The design they adopted has not been preserved. In 1652 a mint was established in Boston. Money coined in this mint had the pine tree stamped on one side of it. The pine tree design was also used on New England flags, certainly by 1704 and possibly as early as 1635.

At the outbreak of the Revolution the American colonies had no flag common to all of them. In many cases the merchant marine flag of England was used with the pine tree substituted for the Union Jack. Massachusetts adopted the green pine tree on a white field, with the motto: "An Appeal to Heaven." Some of the southern states had the rattlesnake flag with the motto "Don't Tread on Me" on a white or yellow field. This flag had been used by South Carolina as early as 1764. Benjamin Franklin defended the rattlesnake device on the ground that the rattlesnake is found only in America, and that serpent emblems were considered by ancients to be symbols of wisdom.

In September, 1774 there was displayed in the South what was by many believed to be the first distinctly American flag. It was blue with a white crescent, and matched the dress of the troops, who wore caps inscribed, "Liberty or Death."

The colonists desired to adopt a common flag but they had not yet declared independence, and were not at first seeking independence. They took the British flag as they knew it, and made a new colonial flag by dividing the red field with white stripes into thirteen alternate red and white stripes. This is known as the Cambridge flag, because it was first unfurled over Washington's headquarters at Cambridge, Mass., on January 1, 1776. It complied with the law of 1707 by having the Union Jack on it; it also represented the thirteen colonies by the thirteen stripes.

As the colonists gradually became converted to the idea that independence from the mother country was necessary, they began to modify the flag, first by leaving off the Union Jack and using only the thirteen horizontal stripes. The modified flags were not always red and white, but regularly consisted of combinations of two colors selected from red, white, blue and yellow. The final modification was the replacement of the Union Jack by the white stars on a blue field.

The stars are the only distinctive feature of the American flag. The charming story which credits Betsy Ross with making the first flag of stars and stripes is still accepted by historians. When Washington suggested the six-pointed star, she demonstrated the ease with which a five-pointed star could be made by folding a piece of paper and producing one with a single clip of the scissors. Some writers are of the opinion that both stars and stripes in the flag were derived from the coat of arms of the Washington family, but this theory is not generally held.

The official adoption of our first flag was in 1777. On June 14 of that year the Continental congress passed an act providing that "the flag of the thirteen united states be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white on a blue field, representing a new constellation." The thirteen stars were arranged in a circle to symbolize the perpetuity of the union of the states.

Vermont was admitted to the Union in 1791 and Kentucky in 1792. It was felt that these two new states ought to be recognized on the flag, so in 1794 congress passed an act making the flag fifteen stars and fifteen stripes.

This remained the flag of the United States throughout the War of 1812, until there were twenty states in the Union. In 1816, an effort was again made to modify the flag so that all the new states would be represented on it. To be continually adding stripes would make the flag very awkward in shape and appearance, so after arguing the matter for two years, congress decided to return to the original thirteen stripes and one star for each state. Congress has never determined the arrangement of the stars nor the shape and proportions of the flag, and there has been great variation, especially in the grouping of the stars. There are still many who believe that the symbolic circular grouping of stars should be restored.

A REAL PATRIOT

"Wheel! I wish the Fourth of July'd come every month!"

State Guards Against Dreaded Lockjaw

Harrisburg, June 25.—Pennsylvania for the past four years has had a larger toll of accidents resulting from Fourth of July celebrations than any other State. In 1914 more than twenty-five per cent of all the accidents which occurred on the Fourth of July, were in this State. It is hoped that this unnecessary toll of death and accidents will be reduced this year by the growing sentiment for a SAFE and SANE celebration.

Restrictive measures relative to the use of fire works and fire arms is the only way in which this can be accomplished.

In order that such accidents as occur may not be followed by deaths from tetanus or lockjaw, as it is commonly known, Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, Commissioner of Health, has made arrangements for the State-wide distribution of tetanus antitoxin. This will be furnished without cost to the poor.

It is essential that tetanus antitoxin be administered within twenty-four hours after the wound has been received. Any physician can secure immunizing doses of 1,500 units upon application if he will certify same is for the treatment of persons too poor to pay.

Dr. Dixon urges the prompt use of antitoxin to prevent lockjaw following explosive or other wounds. He says:

"Do not consider any such wounds trivial, send for the physician at once. If it is impossible to promptly secure his attendance, wash out the wound thoroughly with boiled water, using it as hot as can be borne; remove every particle of foreign matter and until the Doctor arrives apply wet cloths saturated with a solution made by adding a teaspoonful of salt

THE FLAG ADOPTED.

Let the sons of the patriots glow in the pride That is theirs by the right of succession!— I sing of the aliens born far and wide Who of love for the flag make confession. We've seen them in action with Mauser and Krag, And surely they saw in the fluttering Stars of hope! 'Tis not only a banner but shield! Stripes of merit!—A guerdon from many a field! Old Glory! Old Glory! In song and in story Forever you're flying before us!— The red of our blood! The white of our good! And the blue of the sky that smiles o'er us!

We are brothers and sisters by rule from above. We're all of us lovers of freedom Our daddies never fought for the flag that you love— But their sons are right here when you need 'em! And 't isn't our fault (Mr Dooley I quote) That we're sons of "the fellows who missed the first boat." So, brothers and sisters, this message I bring: Our hearts are attuned when we help you to sing: Old Glory! Old Glory! In song and in story Forever you're flying before us!— The red of our blood! The white of our good! And the blue of the sky that smiles o'er us! —Grif Alexander.

"A sane Fourth's the thing," observed the portly mayor. He glanced across the table at his wife, then let his wandering gaze come to rest on his pretty daughter June. "There's no sense in burning powder and making a racket to celebrate our nation's independence; I say, let's have a sane Fourth."

"Of course we'll have a picnic," planned the mayor's better half. "The tables can be set under the trees in that grove by the station. We'll get some carpenters to contribute work on them and a speaker's stand."

"The sooner I talk it over with the business men the better," decided Mayor Munshaw. "I'll talk 'em into prohibiting the sale of fireworks. We'll keep 'em for evening and have 'em set off under the auspices of the village. Our councilmen will officiate."

"Dinner ready," trumpeted Dan Hughes of the megaphone voice. "Everybody set up! And those what can't set 'll have to stand!"

Instantly the shifting crowd coalesced like magic about the long table with Reverend Fanning in a central position to say grace, and the mayor stationed at his right. A profound silence settled over the multitude during this invocation, then a buzz of laughter burst forth with redoubled gayety.

"Superintendent Eldridge will now read the corner stone of American liberty," announced Mayor Munshaw at the close of the song. He beamed out over the perspiring throng. The celebration was a great success. Not a firecracker in the hands of little boys had disturbed the peace. His patriarchal beard hung straight down over his white vest. He was a dignified and imposing figure. As if actuated by an automatic device the superintendent of Dashville high school rose to his feet as the mayor sat heavily down. His carefully-thought-out preliminary remarks lengthened almost to a lecture while his patient audience stared at him stonily. Above domed a sky of brass that loomed a sulphurous hue to the furnace-hot atmosphere. Funs slowly waned. Parboiled countenances were turned toward the speaker. He began, at last, to read:

"When, in the course of human events," he intoned seriously, "it becomes necessary for one people

Sp-t! Bing! Bang! Sp-t! sounded the staccato notes of something that drowned the reader's full tones. Bing! Bang! Roar! Sp-t! Puff! rolled out accumulated noise—a noise that smote the heavens with projectiles. Projectiles darted like mad in every direction while the choir fled wildly from the place and the councilmen grappled with discharging fireworks.

"Someone musta threw a match!"

"That's the work of a cigarette fiend!"

"Bet-chu some boy did that a purpose," were some of the shouted comments. Meanwhile the frantic efforts of the town council released dormant rockets, pin-wheels, set pieces. The startled audience scattered right and left in confusion. Never since 1776 had the Declaration of Independence been so fittingly introduced and forcibly presented. Order was finally restored. People resettled themselves on the benches. Red countenances again confronted the reader and again Superintendent Eldridge intoned the rounded phrases of our charter of liberty.

"a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them."

"Look!" shouted Dan Hughes of the megaphone voice. "The depot's on fire!"

"The oil tanks! The oil tanks!" shouted a dozen voices. "The tank cars 'll explode!"

They did. At least flames shot upward and seemed to greedily lick the sky. With a dull, prolonged roar ascending fire tongued the heavens while every man, woman and child of Dashville deserted the picnic grounds, and raced for the spot. Even Mayor Munshaw managed to join a hastily formed fire brigade and assist in passing water to men on the depot roof. In the thick of fire and smoke he worked valiantly. And when he emerged from the ruins before the final collapse no one would have recognized the mayor of Dashville. His luxuriant beard was no more. Fire had ruthlessly mowed it to his chin. His patriarchal dignity had departed.

The bucket brigade stood back and viewed the roaring conflagration.

"Looks like all hell had broke loose," commented one of the village council.

"Musta been a blazing rocket stick," declared another.

"Or a cigar stub," guessed a third. Straggling at the rear of the last babe-laden woman were June and Tom Norris. June was frightened. She wanted someone to remain at her side and look closely after her welfare. So Tom accepted the office. They turned their backs on the fire and slowly sauntered toward the depopulated town. Never had Tom seen June more charming. Her gown was like a bit of mid-summer sky trimmed with fleecy cloud. Her blue eyes were luminous with love. Her cherry red lips were tempting sweet but when he would have begged a kiss timidly intervened. Instead he looked at the sky and saw, instead of ruby lips, a funnel-shaped cloud of copper hue that approached at meteor speed. "A cyclone!" he shouted and caught June up in his arms. There was no time for delay. Swift danger swept away his temerity. He forgot that he was but a struggling bank clerk and June the daughter of Dashville's wealthy mayor. Like any knight of medieval times he was rescuing his lady fair from impending death, death from a rampant cyclone. And, unlike the valorous knight of old who wielded spear in defense of his love, he was forced to the ignominious device of seeking a cellar. It would be the only spot respected by the destroyer. With a vicious lunge he burst in the door of the nearest house that offered basement protection and leaped down the cellar stairs. The next moment there came a grinding roar as if the very universe was being uprooted and flung to the raging winds. Terrified, June clung to her lover while he freely uttered the long delayed words of endearment. In that supreme moment their meeting lips sealed their troth. Then they became aware that the destroying agent had passed, leaving desolation in its wake. The house above them was gone, revealing a lurid sky. About them were strewn the ruins of a razed village. Dashville was mainly kindling wood and scattered stone.

Dust-begrimed, disheveled but absurdly happy the two climbed from the cellar and sought the mayor. The station where Tom Norris owned property was unscathed. It was fortunately at one side of the path of the ruin that included the Munshaw residence and over half the town. He would offer refuge to his future father-in-law and at the same propitious moment ask his daughter's hand in marriage. They met dismayed residents searching among the debris for shattered homes yet thankful for their lives. The Fourth of July picnic had saved them. But for the gathering at the grove many would have been caught in crashing buildings and perished. Finally the mayor, or what was left of him, loomed in view.

"Papa," cried June when she recognized the wreck of her once spic-and-span parent, "Tom saved me! Carried me into a cyclone cellar! But whatever happened to you?"

"Nothing's happened to me," testily declared the foremost citizen of Dash-ville. "Nothing on earth's happened to me but a condemned sane Fourth that's gone clean looney!"

"Why, papa," said June with a happy glance at her lover, "I think this has been a perfectly beautiful Fourth of July!"

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of Sunday School Course of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

LESSON FOR JULY 4

ABSALOM'S FAILURE

LESSON TEXT—II Samuel 18:1-15
GOLDEN TEXT—Children obey your parents in the Lord; for this is right.—Ephesians 6:1

His connivance with Joab, in the death of Uriah, was a costly bargain for David, and the development of sin in his family with its long train of fearful consequences teaches us that sin respects not person nor position. The dark story of chapter 13 involves Absalom's flight and Joab's strategy in getting him back to Jerusalem (ch. 14). All is not as well, however, as it outwardly appears, for Absalom the beautiful (14:25) soon stole the heart of the ten tribes, Israel (ch. 15), from his indulgent and indifferent parent. Then follows the story of that father's flight and of the son's entry into the capital city.

This entire story is one of the most wonderful dramas recorded in secular or sacred history. It may be divided roughly as follows: Act I. Absalom slays his brother. Act II. David fails to become fully reconciled. Act III. Absalom's rebellion. Act IV. David's grief. The lesson for today has to do with Acts III. and IV.

Act III. Scene 1. David's Flight and Finesse, chapters 15, 16 and 17. "A foolish son is a grief to his father, and bitterness to her that bare him" (Prov. 17:25). On the other hand an indulgent and an indifferent father brings grief to his son.

Scene 2. The Battle of Mount Ephraim (chapter 18). David at the Gate, v. 1-5. The place where David "numbered" (v. 1) his followers was Mahanaim (17:27), where Jacob saw the two "hosts" of angels (Gen. 32:1, 2). What David saw was quite different. As he waited he had time to contemplate that other time that he remained behind when he ought to have gone forth to battle and which resulted in the sin for which he was even now suffering (ch. 11:1-7). Absalom was skilful as men count shrewdness, but he made one fatal omission in planning his campaign, he left God out of his reckoning (ch. 17:14 R. V.). David's use of Hushai was fully justified by the situation into which this reckless son was precipitated, still it is probable that David listened to the advice of his followers (v. 3) more willingly because of his reluctance to fight against his own son.

Scene 3. Absalom's Defeat, vv. 6-10. The battle was so planned that the advantage of the forest was on David's side and more of the enemies of David were smitten by the hand of God (v. 8) than were slain by the servants of David. These men brought judgment upon themselves through their disloyalty to God's chosen king (Judges 5:20, 21) and in this we see a type of that final victory which shall end our David's engagement with his foes (Rev. 19:11-21; II Thess. 2:8). Men who today are disloyal or disobedient to God's chosen King can only expect "a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation which shall devour the adversaries" (Heb. 10:27). At the end of the battle proud Absalom is not found in his chariot, but helplessly entangled in the crown of his pride.

Scene 4. Absalom's Death, vv. 11-15. "Absalom chased to meet" (v. 9 R. V.); there is no chance in the providences of God. His desire to meet David's servants is granted, yet that meeting brought Absalom dismay, defeat and ruin.

Joab now takes matters into his own hands. He held David in his power and had a debt to pay Absalom (ch. 14:29). Most dearly did Absalom pay the penalty to this vengeful, time-abiding soldier. Joab was not content to slay this proud youth, but, to show his contempt, he cast the dead body into a pit and raised over it a "great heap" of stones (v. 17). So Absalom's proud monument (v. 18) failed of its intended purpose. David's victory was complete; even so will be the ultimate victory of our "greater David" (Phil. 2:10, 11).

Act IV. David's Grief, v. 19-33. Scene 1. The Messengers. Again our attention is centered upon the grief-stricken father. His anxiety is sincere and heart-breaking, but it is tardy. The first messenger, Ahimaaz, is a good man, but brings not good news. Is our message one of life or of death? The second messenger gives a diplomatic but a blunt answer to David's anxious inquiry. What cared David for his enemies, his army, nay for himself, if only the "young man" were safe.

Application. "Is the young man safe?" Industrially, socially, physically, morally, spiritually, his safety depends upon the guidance of the home, the father and the church. Only as parents hear and obey the Master's words, "Bring thy son hither" (Luke 9:41) is the young man safe. David's sin was not, however, sufficient cause for Absalom's downfall; he courted his own ruin (John 5:40).

The great outstanding lesson of this entire drama, extending from the eleventh to the nineteenth chapters, is: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

HELP WANTED IN BEDFORD

And Furnished by the Help of Bedford People.

Those who suffer with kidney backache, urinary ills or any little kidney or bladder disorder, want kidney help. Who can better advise than some Bedford resident, who has also suffered, but has had relief. Bedford people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's one case and there are many others.

Mrs. W. Trout, 202 Spring St., Bedford, says: "I believe that I had all the symptoms that usually accompany kidney disease. I suffered much from severe pains in my back and sides. I was often very dizzy and spots appeared before my eyes. Finally, my ankles and limbs became swollen. My condition was such as to cause me much worry. My son got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills for me at Heckerman's Drug Store. They did me more good than all the other medicines I ever took. The swelling has gone down, the pains have stopped and I am stronger. You can use my recommendation of Doan's Kidney Pills at any time you want to."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Trout had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. 2 July 21. Advertisement.

Bean's Cove

June 24—Miss Maude Donahoe and J. Cleveland Bridges were united in marriage Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock at St. Peter and Paul's Church, Cumberland, by Rev. Father Chillian, pastor of St. Mary's Church of this place. Miss Nellie Donahoe, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and Lawrence Donahoe of Clarksburg, W. Va., cousin of the bride, was best man. The bride was attractively attired in a light blue traveling suit and wore a hat to match. Miss Donahoe is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Donahoe of Pleasant Valley, Pa. The groom is a son of Mrs. Margaret Bridges of this place. Mr. and Mrs. Bridges returned to the bride's home Wednesday evening where a wedding supper was served to the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The dining room was tastefully decorated with flowers of the season.

John Barrett and Leo Donahoe of Cumberland were guests of relatives of this place on Sunday.

The American Magazine

The most striking and important article in the July American Magazine is an article entitled "Lord Kitchener's Great Bluff," in which is told for the first time the news that England has secretly raised an army four times as big as she has admitted—in other words, 4,000,000 instead of 1,000,000. The author of the article is J. Herbert Duckworth, an Englishman, who, for about ten years, has lived in New York City where he has been engaged in journalism. Other interesting articles in this number are "The Secret of Steady Golf," by Edward Lyell Fox; "The Golden Rule in Business," by Ida M. Tarbell; "Picking up Stage Wisdom," by Katherine Grey; "A Senator's Mail," by a United States Senator. Fiction is contributed by a number of noted writers. The "Interesting People" department contains five entertaining and inspiring little articles, and announcement is made of a new department called "Family Finances." The prize-winning letters in the contest entitled "The Most Extraordinary Coincidence I Know Of" are published in this issue, and James Montgomery Flagg's amusing contribution in words and pictures under the "I Should Say So" completes the number.

Watch Your Children

Often children do not let parents know they are constipated. They fear something distasteful. They will like Rexall Orderlies—a mild laxative that tastes like sugar. Sold only by us, 10 cents.

Frank W. Jordan, Jr.

Heredity

Strong human passions hold man's soul in thrall.

And craven fear blames much to those great laws Of given heredity—excuse for many a fall.

With sad environment, of sin the cause.

But strange souls fear no sad punishment.

But rule themselves and their environment.

WHEN WILL COERCION STOP?

When Dr. Scott Nearing was dismissed from the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania that institution set the pace for a species of coercion which is far reaching in its efforts upon free speech.

Hereafter, to follow out the pleasure of the trustees of an institution, the professors will have to submit their ideas to them before giving them out to their most intimate friends, since Hon. John C. Bell is recorded as saying that the reason for the professor's retirement is found in a personal remark made to some one. Whether that be true or not, the University cannot put up any excuse without showing a degree of weakness. The trustees explain that the institution is a private one and no one has any right to criticize the action taken. It is remembered that the University is committed to high tariff and has a right to certain fixed rules of social and industrial needs, all of which place it in the category of politics, but cannot any of its professors entertain and expound any progressive or advanced principles without first submitting them to a board of critics?

But the University is not a private institution. Does it not get thousands of dollars as State appropriation which the people must pay? That helps to pay dividends, to go into the pockets of someone somewhere. It is a quasi-public institution and has no right to claim absolute private ownership. The institution has had some of the most advanced and learned professors of America since its organization in 1740, and never in its history has free thought and free speech been so materially embarrassed and curtailed as the effect of this will produce.

Most disfiguring skin eruption, scrofula, pimples, rashes, etc., are due to impure blood. Burdock Blood Bitters as a cleansing blood tonic, is well recommended. $1.00 at all stores.—Adv.

Steel and munition companies are enormously increasing their plants to manufacture war materials. When the war closes the extensions will not be needed and of course hard times and calamity will be howled to the four quarters of the globe if the Democrats are in power but if the Republicans are in the saddle it will be a delusion. The plants will be idle all right but nothing will be said about it.
